The first two pages of the document are a typewritten English-language report and [REDACTED] comment stating that from 3 to 23 Jan 52 two surveying engineers of the SHD (Seehydrographischer Dienst, Maritime Hydrographic Service) at Stralsund surveyed a 600-meter wide strip of land on the isle of Ruegen, on orders of the Main Administration of the Sea Police. The project was top secret and was in line with plans to construct a naval harbor by cutting through from the Fromper Wiek to the Jasmunder Bodden, an old German project which had been abandoned in 1939. -
